SUB DEATH SHELL GIVES UP ANOTHER BODY

ENGINEMAN BURKE FOUND IN ENGINE ROOM OF VESSEL

BELIEVED 4 OR 5 MORE BODIES
LIE THERE PINIONED IN WRECKAGE

HEAVY SEAS LATER INDEFINITE-
LY SUSPEND SALVAGE
OPERATIONS

By CARL D. GROAT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Newport, R. I., Oct. 3.—Another body has been taken from the submarine S-51, according to a wireless dispatch received by naval communications here today.

The body is that of Engineman Burke, second class. It was found in the engine room of the sunken submarine.

Burke's home was in Shoemakersville, Pa.

The body of Burke was brought aboard Admiral Christy's flagship Camden a short while after divers had begun their morning operations within the sunken submarine S-51.

It was believed the body was that which divers had seen yesterday in the engine room when the S-51 yielded two others who had perished.

Explorations continued in the engine room where it is thought four or five more bodies may be pinioned beneath masses of wreckage.

Taking their own lives in their hands divers above the grave of the S-51, girded themselves to fetch from within that grim steel casket more bodies of her crew. They had established beyond doubt that the hull contains no living men.

The crew is now "officially" dead and the tortuous suspense of kinsfolk as to whether their loved ones are dead or alive in the chambers of the submarine is at an end.

An exploration hole bored into the torpedo room yesterday revealed upon the air gauge that this section was flooded and established that from stem to stern the craft was filled with water.

Rear Admiral Christy later sent the following message to the base here, indicating further work today was impossible:

"After Burke's body recovered, sea became rough and dangerous to divers, although they expressed willingness to continue.

"The burning of torpedo room hatch has been halted.

"Burke's body will be brought to Newport on mine sweeper Lark."

Salvage operations at the scene of the disaster shortly after were indefinitely suspended because of the heavy seas and all ships engaged in these operations have been ordered into port, according to a wireless dispatch to naval communications here from Admiral H. H. Christy.

COUNTIES WIN SHARE OF EXCISES

St. Paul, Oct. 3.—(UP)—A total of $33,142.14 was paid to counties of the state yesterday as their share of excises obtained from Electric railways operating within their boundaries, Ray P. Chase, Minnesota auditor announced.

State law provides that certain counties receive part of the gross earnings tax of electric lines. Taxes of steam lines go to the state exclusively.

Twenty-six state educational institutions also received half of the total revenue from sale of state timber and swamp lands.

CHURCHILL TUNNEL OF C. & O. RY. CAVES IN AND KILLS TWO

Richmond, Va., Oct. 3.—(UP)—A cavern of the Churchill tunnel of the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad in the eastern part of the city took the lives of two men, seriously injured two others and several are still listed as missing.

Steam shovels today were digging in the debris in the hope of rescuing the missing believed entombed.

The toll of the accident was much less than at first feared, as it developed that nearly 100 laborers who were repairing the tunnel escaped out one end when the other end started crumbling.

"OPEN SESAME" OF BEER BARONS IS INVESTIGATED

THEIR REVERSING OF COURT
ORDERS IS TO ME
SCRUTINIZED

DRUGGAN IN SYCAMORE JAIL
EATS PLAIN FOOD AND USES MOP

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(UP)—Another federal investigation of the "open sesame" by which Terry Druggan, the beer baron, reverses the effect of court orders was in the making today. It will be aimed particularly at determining why Druggan and his two guards did not reach the Sycamore jail, 56 miles from Chicago, for seven hours after they left.

The guards said an automobile accident held them up. But this explanation apparently was not satisfactory, for Deputy Marshals Walter C. Zippman and A. C. Pollack, who were in charge of Druggan, were dismissed from the service summarily today.

Druggan and his guards reached the Sycamore jail shortly after midnight. Sheriff Edwin R. Crawford was awaiting them. He silenced Druggan's complaints of injuries in the accident with an examination which disclosed a slight scratch on the beer baron's leg.

The guards did not make it plain why they in charge of an important prisoner who thus far has scorned everything smacking of legal custody, did not notify their superior of the accident immediately.

Druggan awoke at 6 a. m. today facing a new experience. He ate the ordinary jail fare in his cell and was given a mop with which to clean the floor. This will be his early routine every day, Sheriff Crawford said.

Druggan's cell has one touch of adornment, a lace curtain but in this respect it is not dissimilar from others. They play no favorites at Sycamore, even though the jail is called the "cleanest in Illinois."

SWITCHED BAGGAGE CHECKS CAUSED JEWELS LOSSES

THEFT OF $150,000 GEMS RE-
PORTED BY NEW YORK
MAN

TRUNK EVENTUALLY FOUND, BUT STRIPPED OF ITS
JEWEL CONTENTS

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(UP)—Switched baggage checks was responsible for the theft of $150,000 worth of jewels from Edward L. Morse of New York, authorities decided today after a cursory investigation.

Morse was preparing to leave Chicago with a trunk filled with jewels he had been exhibiting for sale. He sent the trunk to the Dearborn street station receiving a baggage check from his hotel porter. When he called at the station to inspect the trunk he was shown one which he said was not his own.

A trunk answering the description given by Morse had been given to another man an hour earlier, the station master said. He had taken it away in a taxicab. Checking through the taxi cab company it was learned the man had checked in at a downtown hotel. Morse's trunk, stripped of all its jewels was found in the room early today but the man had left.

The porter at the Sherman hotel where Morse had been stopping said he remembered giving Morse a trunk check and also gave a check to another man at the same time. It would have been possible he admitted to have switched the checks.

Police at 7:30 a. m. took into custody Louis Grossman, a hotel loiterer that Morse said he had talked to about the jewels. Morse said he knew of no other person that had knowledge of the jewels.

BANK PRESIDENT FRUSTRATES HOLDUP

DRAWS HIS OWN GUN WHEN
BANDIT RELAXED VIGIL-
ANCE

Danville, Ind., Oct. 3.—(UP)—An attempt to hold up the Danville State Bank was frustrated today by the bank president, Oliver M. Pierson.

A single bandit entered the bank during the night and hid until Raymond Veary, assistant cashier, appeared at 8 A. M. Thrusting a gun in Veary's face, the bandit handcuffed him and forced him to lie on his face in a rear room.

Fifteen minutes later, H. M. Powell, cashier, was given the same treatment. Shortly thereafter President Pierson, arriving, was ordered to open the vault.

In his eagerness to open a drawer in the bank, the bandit slackened his guard on Pierson, who drew his own revolver.

The bandit fled.

The Atala was submerged at high tide. Three race horses crated were drowned in the disaster. The Atala was making a special trip from St. Malo to the Jersey Islands, carrying automobiles and race horses when she foundered.

Chin was shot five times as he stepped from his laundry to post a letter. His assailants drove up to the mail box in a large automobile, emptied the contents of an automatic pistol left on the street and fled.

Apprehension for the safety of holding the Hip Sing convention had been expressed early in the week but no definite postponement was made public. The meeting had previously been set for a September date and postponed until today.

The shooting was the first since August. Police have been told it was done by imported gunmen from Chicago and New York.

SAYS COMPLAINT OF MAGNUS JOHNSON IS TOO VAGUE

SENATE SUBCOMMITTEE RULES
HE MUST REDRAFT THE INSTRUMENT

3 WEEKS GRANTED IN FURTHER
STEP OF JOHNSON ELEC-TION CONTEST

Chicago, Oct. 3.—(UP)—Magnus Johnson, former senator from Minnesota, must redraft his complaint against Senator Thomas D. Schall, his victorious opponent at the last election, to press his contest suit, a senate subcommittee has decided.

The committee ruled that Johnson's complaint was too vague to be a basis for further procedure. In consequence Johnson's attorney withdrew it and will have three weeks in which to file a new one. Schall will be allowed two weeks to make his answer to the new bill.

Insinuations about a "scented cigar" which Johnson lays to Schall were held to be too general and not supporting Johnson's contention that Schall is not entitled to the 8,000 margin of votes by which Schall was victorious.

Johnson said Schall told of a man smoking a "scented cigar" offering $25,000 for support of the World Court plan. Schall was quoted as having asked whether Johnson's decision to back the court plan was not a result of a visit from the man with the "scented cigar." Schall also was accused of having collected huge sums from bootleggers but the senate subcommittee pointed out there was no showing that the amount collected exceeded the legal limit.

The committee which turned down Johnson's complaint is headed by Senator Charles S. Deneen of Illinois.

MITCHELL MAY FACE A COURT MARTIAL SOON

CHARGES OF INSUBORDINATION

MITCHELL MAY REPLY ORALLY
AT ONCE, OR MAY ASK FOR COUNSEL

By WILLIAM J. LOSH
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Oct. 3.—With the president's air board in recess over the week-end the impending court martial proceedings against Colonel William Mitchell on charges of insubordination became the center of official attention today.

Mitchell was ordered to report to the inspector general of the army Monday when he will be served with a copy of the war department's charges. At that time he will be given an opportunity to answer, somewhat in the nature of a prisoner pleading to an indictment.

Mitchell may reply orally at once or he may ask for several days' time to obtain counsel and prepare a written answer.

When the answer is filed Acting Secretary of War Davis will issue the formal order for the court martial, if President Coolidge decides upon one.

Davis is acting in this case for the president, who is one of the few persons empowered to call such a trial. High war department officials show no sign of relenting and it is believed almost a certainty that Mitchell will be tried in Washington soon. One official estimated the court would begin its sittings within three weeks.

FRANK HEYWOOD, A MILLIONAIRE, MAY BUILD HERE

HAS $50,000 BARN AND MODEL
DAIRY FARM AT HIS GULL
LAKE PARK DAIRY

RECENTLY BUILT $1,000,000 HO-
TEL IN FLORIDA AND SOLD
SAME THIS SPRING

Frank Heywood, millionaire box manufacturer of Minneapolis, has taken a liking to Brainerd and the Brainerd Lake Region, and early next spring may build a $30,000 pasteurization plant in Brainerd.

My Heywood does things in a big way. With the assistance of an enterprising superintendent, Charles Kargel, he has made his Gull Lake Park Dairy known throughout the Northwest. At Gull Lake, near Grand View Lodge, he has a $50,000 dairy barn, Guernsey herds, and a pasteurization plant.

Last year Mr. Heywood built a $1,000,000 hotel in Florida and early this spring sold it. This now causes him to center his interest in Brainerd and the Brainerd Lake Region.

The Gull Lake Park Dairy now has in operation a pasteurizing plant and is furnishing a large number of customers in Brainerd with milk thus treated, rendering a service that is usually found only in the larger cities.

So great is the demand for this pasteurized milk locally that the dairy cannot supply enough from its own herds and is compelled to purchase the output of other dairies. It buys milk only from city inspected plants, however, thus meeting the requirements of the city ordinance and maintaining its own high standard.

Dairymen who are now selling their output to the Gull Lake Park Dairy claim that they are really making more money than when they operated their own dairies independently and delivered on wide routes. They now deliver their milk to the pasteurizing plant in bulk, and are thus relieved of the expense of bottling and distributing their own product.

Pasteurized milk sold to customers has been known to keep fresh for eight days when properly iced. It is an ideal treatment for milk and is highly recommended by health authorities. The state board of health asserts that pasteurization is universally recognized as the most dependable and economical method of rendering milk safe for human consumption. The process is applied primarily for the purpose of overcoming dangers from the transmission of communicable diseases through raw milk which may not be eliminated by even the most intensive dairy and medical inspection.

The term pasteurization as applied to milk means heating it to a temperature of not lower than 145 degrees for not less than 30 minutes. This does not render the milk sterile, but destroys the disease-producing bacteria.

A. J. Chesley, M. D., secretary and executive officer of the state board of health, has had a complete inspection and investigation of the Gull Lake Dairy's pasteurization plant, and reports upon it as follows: "This investigation was undertaken to determine whether the equipment and methods of pasteurization at this plant conform with the requirements of this department governing the pasteurization of milk.

"The building in which this plant is located provides a receiving room, a wash room, a pasteurizing and bottling room, a refrigerator room, and a boiler room which is located in the basement. The various rooms of the plant were in a satisfactory and well-kept condition on the date of this investigation. The rooms were practically free from flies.

"The milk is pasteurized in a 100-gallon glass-lined tank, pumped to an external surface cooler which is provided with the proper cover, and (Continued on Page 4)

Newport, R. I., Oct. 3.—Another body has been taken from the submarine S-51, according to a wireless dispatch received by naval communications here today.

The body is that of Engineman Burke, second class. It was found in the engine room of the sunken submarine.

Burke's home was in Shoemakersville, Pa.

The body of Burke was brought aboard Admiral Christy's flagship Camden a short while after divers had begun their morning operations within the sunken submarine S-51.

It was believed the body was that which divers had seen yesterday in the engine room when the S-51 yielded two others who had perished.

Explorations continued in the engine room where it is thought four or five more bodies may be pinioned beneath masses of wreckage.

Taking their own lives in their hands divers above the grave of the S-51, girded themselves to fetch from within that grim steel casket more bodies of her crew. They had established beyond doubt that the hull contains no living men.

The crew is now "officially" dead and the tortuous suspense of kin-folk as to whether their loved ones are dead or alive in the chambers of the submarine is at an end.

An exploration hole bored into the torpedo room yesterday revealed upon the air gauge that this section was flooded and established that from stem to stern the craft was filled with water.

Rear Admiral Christy later sent the following message to the base here, indicating further work today was impossible:

"After Burke's body recovered, sea became rough and dangerous to divers, although they expressed willingness to continue.

"The burning of torpedo room hatch has been halted.

"Burke's body will be brought to Newport on mine sweeper Lark."

Salvage operations at the scene of the disaster shortly after were indefinitely suspended because of the heavy seas and all ships engaged in these operations have been ordered into port, according to a wireless dispatch to naval communications here from Admiral H. H. Christy.

It will be aimed particularly at determining why Druggan and his two guards did not reach the Sycamore jail, 56 miles from Chicago, for seven hours after they left.

The guards said an automobile accident held them up. But this explanation apparently was not satisfactory, for Deputy Marshals Walter C. Zippman and A. C. Pollack, who were in charge of Druggan, were dismissed from the service summarily today.

The committee ruled that Johnson's complaint was too vague to be a basis for further procedure. In consequence Johnson's attorney withdrew it and will have three weeks in which to file a new one. Schall will be allowed two weeks to make his answer to the new bill.

Insinuations about a "scented cigar" which Johnson lays to Schall were held to be too general and not supporting Johnson's contention that Schall is not entitled to the 8,000 margin of votes by which Schall was victorious.

Johnson said Schall told of a man smoking a "scented cigar" offering $25,000 for support of the World Court plan. Schall was quoted as having asked whether Johnson's decision to back the court plan was not a result of a visit from the man with the "scented cigar."

Schall also was accused of having collected huge sums from bootleggers but the senate subcommittee pointed out there was no showing that the amount collected exceeded the legal limit.

The committee which turned down Johnson's complaint is headed by Senator Charles S. Deneen of Illinois.

MITCHELL MAY FACE A COURT MARTIAL SOON

CHARGES OF INSUBORDINATION
ARE TO BE MADE
SHORTLY

MITCHELL MAY REPLY ORALLY
AT ONCE, OR MAY ASK FOR COUNSEL

By WILLIAM J. LOSH
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Oct. 3.—With the president's air board in recess over the week-end the impending court martial proceedings against Colonel William Mitchell on charges of insubordination became the center of official attention today.

Mitchell was ordered to report to the inspector general of the army Monday when he will be served with a copy of the war department's charges. At that time he will be given an opportunity to answer, somewhat in the nature of a prisoner pleading to an indictment.

Mitchell may reply orally at once or he may ask for several days' time to obtain counsel and prepare a written answer.

When the answer is filed Acting Secretary of War Davis will issue the formal order for the court martial, if President Coolidge decides upon one.

Davis is acting in this case for the president, who is one of the few persons empowered to call such a trial. High war department officials show no sign of relenting and it is believed almost a certainty that Mitchell will be tried in Washington soon. One official estimated the court would begin its sittings within three weeks.

FRANK HEYWOOD, A MILLIONAIRE, MAY BUILD HERE

HAS $50,000 BARN AND MODEL
DAIRY FARM AT HIS GULL
LAKE PARK DAIRY

RECENTLY BUILT $1,000,000 HO-
TEL IN FLORIDA AND SOLD
SAME THIS SPRING

Frank Heywood, millionaire box manufacturer of Minneapolis, has taken a liking to Brainerd and the Brainerd Lake Region, and early next spring may build a $30,000 pasteurization plant in Brainerd.

My Heywood does things in a big way. With the assistance of an enterprising superintendent, Charles Kargel, he has made his Gull Lake Park Dairy known throughout the Northwest. At Gull Lake, near Grand View Lodge, he has a $50,000 dairy barn, Guernsey herds, and a pasteurization plant.

Last year Mr. Heywood built a $1,000,000 hotel in Florida and early this spring sold it. This now causes him to center his interest in Brainerd and the Brainerd Lake Region.

The Gull Lake Park Dairy now has in operation a pasteurizing plant and is furnishing a large number of customers in Brainerd with milk thus treated, rendering a service that is usually found only in the larger cities.

So great is the demand for this pasteurized milk locally that the dairy cannot supply enough from its own herds and is compelled to purchase the output of other dairies. It buys milk only from city inspected plants, however, thus meeting the requirements of the city ordinance and maintaining its own high standard.

Dairymen who are now selling their output to the Gull Lake Park Dairy claim that they are really making more money than when they operated their own dairies independently and delivered on wide routes. They now deliver their milk to the pasteurizing plant in bulk, and are thus relieved of the expense of bottling and distributing their own product.

Pasteurized milk sold to customers has been known to keep fresh for eight days when properly iced. It is an ideal treatment for milk and is highly recommended by health authorities. The state board of health asserts that pasteurization is universally recognized as the most dependable and economical method of rendering milk safe for human consumption. The process is applied primarily for the purpose of overcoming dangers from the transmission of communicable diseases through raw milk which may not be eliminated by even the most intensive dairy and medical inspection.

The term pasteurization as applied to milk means heating it to a temperature of not lower than 145 degrees for not less than 30 minutes. This does not render the milk sterile, but destroys the disease-producing bacteria.

A. J. Chesley, M. D., secretary and executive officer of the state board of health, has had a complete inspection and investigation of the Gull Lake Dairy's pasteurization plant, and reports upon it as follows:

"This investigation was undertaken to determine whether the equipment and methods of pasteurization at this plant conform with the requirements of this department governing the pasteurization of milk."

"The building in which this plant is located provides a receiving room, a wash room, a pasteurizing and bottling room, a refrigerator room, and a boiler room which is located in the basement. The various rooms of the plant were in a satisfactory and well-kept condition on the date of this investigation. The rooms were practically free from flies."

"The milk is pasteurized in a 100-gallon glass-lined tank, pumped to an external surface cooler which is provided with the proper cover, and

They Got That Davenport

There is a home not far distant from Brainerd that is happy in the possession of a brand new davenport. It is a nice davenport and it has found a nice home.

But the point of the story is this: The lady of the house decided some months ago that she wanted that davenport. So she started a savings account with us and steadily saved until she had the required amount.

And that davenport means more to that home—much more than if it were purchased on the installment plan and the installments were constantly coming due on it.

"BETTER LIGHTING-BETTER BUSINESS"

To Get SAFE Investments

Stock promoters of the dishonest kind have many clever tricks.

They induce business men to take a sporting chance. Then they say to other prospects, "These prominent citizens have bought stock; surely they must believe in our enterprise." They mention a few who grew rich through similar investments and forget thousands who thus lost money.

If they urge you to invest quickly, beware. There is always time to consult your banker first.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1925

THE FLORIDA FEVER

The Florida fever is really a worse affliction than the California kind. The Florida fever subjects its patient to extreme vagaries. Whereas you and I are content to deal in dollars and cents and think the loss of two bits is something to be checked up, the Florida fever patient sees nothing but figures in the tens and hundreds of thousands of columns.

According to our notion, the average real estate firm in Florida must have a set of adding machines geared up to the millions columns, something like Germany had when its wall paper marks ran to destruction.

As matters stand now in Florida, it's only food and passenger trains that get any leeway. A man from New York shipped down his automobile and they could not land it. There wasn't an inch space on an ocean dock, and so the car came back.

New additions are being added daily to Florida realty and the Everglades are being pushed back like a tidal wave. One of our residents is reported taking his whole family to Florida and finding that land he bought years ago when it took a tincup to measure it, has now receded from the swamps and waters and is next door to Miami.

The average Florida town offers scenery and climate, and grapefruit, bananas and oranges picked from your own orchard, and beautiful bathing girls in abbreviated costumes swimming past your front door dock, and bands playing in the moonlight, and traffic cops who are so polite they apologize when they tell you that you have broken speed laws, and lots are selling so rapidly that the first man in line at a real estate office often sells his lot at a $1,000 advance to the last man in the line as he files out of the office. New issues of subdivisions are issued like stock in a stock market and offerings are often over-subscribed like world's series or Notre Dame games.

People run around wearing only shirt, shoes and pants. The main occupation seems to be selling lots and running to the boat and train to see if anything has got past the food embargo.

AMERICAN AVIATORS FIGHTING RIFFS

THIS man Sweeney and other Americans are bombing the Rifian forces, dropping destruction on defenseless villages, attacking convoys and garrisons and otherwise aiding the French in their offensive against the hill tribes of Morocco.

Sweeney writes flamboyantly of aiding civilization by extinguishing the Riffs. The question has been raised, "Are the American aviators who are fighting with France against the Rifians breaking a law of the United States?"

Here is the U. S. statute:

"Every person who, within the territory or jurisdiction of the United States, enlists or enters himself, or hires or retains another person to enter himself, or to go beyond the limit of jurisdiction of the United States, with intent to be enlisted or entered in the service of any foreign prince, state, colony, district or people, as a soldier, or as a Marine or seaman, on board of any vessel of war, or privateer, shall be deemed guilty of high misdemeanor and shall be fined not more than $1,000 and imprisoned not more than three years."

The United States has no quarrel with the Rifians, neither has any American citizen.

THESE ARE THE STORIES AN EDITOR LIKES TO WRITE

THE other day A. H. Goodrich, a prominent druggist in the state for 50 years, died at his home in Anoka. The Monticello Times comments on the fact that he never failed to carry an original and fresh ad in the local paper.

In that time he had a total of 1300 ads to which he had given careful attention. He was one of the most public spirited men found in the state and he was a strong believer in the power of printer's ink when it was properly applied and he always took time to study the effect of his ads and revise and correct his opinions as the results were spread before him.

One thing, however, is true that back of his advertising is the fact that he always had the goods which his ads called for and the patrons of the newspapers believed in him.

Would that we could write this of all druggists in general and our local druggists in particular. If they heed the Goodrich example, they can easily see what nice obituaries will follow their demise.

THE Dempsey-Willis fight negotiations struggled hard to share honors with the French debt funding negotiations. Fight arrangements are growing so important that Dempsey has hired a lawyer to devote all his time to his interests. The present fight has the earmarks of a court battle in the offing.

THE Elks national magazine, current issue, carries a half-column story on the Elks state convention in Brainerd and the town thus gets national advertising, the account being read by close to a million Elks in all parts of the United States and its possessions.

THE five and ten cent store business yields princely returns and is substantiated by the fact that a daughter of the founder of such chain stores is able to lose $700,000 in jewels and still have a few left to adorn her beauty.

UNDAUNTED by his failure to reach the North Pole by air-plane, Captain Roald Amundsen is planning another flight, this plane, Captain Roald Amundsen is planning another flight, this some time in April, next year.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN was a pacifist, but perusal of his life's history shows he was a fighting pacifist.

It will take two years to reach a decision on the northern Minnesota lakes power controversy.

COLDS are rife in town, stimulating the drug store business and sale of handkerchiefs.

bottled and capped with an automatic machine. If properly iced, the refrigerator will provide facilities for storing milk at a temperature of below 50 degrees Fahrenheit. An examination of the recording thermometer charts indicated that the milk is heated to a temperature of 145 degrees Fahrenheit for not less than 30 minutes.

"The milk is taken to Brainerd, a distance of approximately 12 miles, late in the afternoon where it is stored in a building until loaded on the delivery wagons the following morning.

"The low bacterial count of the samples collected corroborates the field survey and indicates satisfactory methods of pasteurization. An examination of the bottles after they had been washed and sterilized in the usual manner indicated that the bottles were satisfactorily sterilized."

The bacterial counts of samples taken at the Gull Lake Park Dairy by the state board of health were unusually gratifying as is shown by the board's report. One quart bottle just pasteurized and bottled showed 1,200 bacteria per c. c., and another showed only 900. This is extremely low, when it is considered that the law provides that pasteurized milk when delivered to the consumer should contain less than 50,000 bacteria per c. c.

The sterilization of milk bottles at the Gull Lake Park Dairy is also highly sanitary, the report shows. One quart bottle, after washing and sterilizing, showed no bacteria and a second showed only 10, while the law provides that bottles may contain as high as 1,000.

They will return to their base on Saturday, they said.

Pastor Simpson M. E. Church, Minneapolis

THE CHURCH AND THE RICH

One of the pet phrases of the malcontent is his reference to "rich churches filled with worshippers clothed in silks and furs."

The idea has gone out in certain quarters that every church is composed of rich exploiters who sit comfortably on velvet cushions in deep pews while some milk and water individual utters harmless platitudes to an accompaniment of soft music.

The government census indicates that the total membership of the churches of the United States is approximately forty-seven million. Can it be possible that we have that many rich folk among us?

An analysis was recently made of the income of a city church of two thousand members with a staff of eight salaried workers. It is one of the most prosperous and influential organizations in its community. Its people are neither rich nor poor—it is just an average American church.

Six hundred separate pledges are made to its annual budget, the average amount being slightly less than thirty dollars per year. Several hundred of these pledges represent entire families, yet the average is only a little in excess of fifty cents per week per family.

This is little, if any, more than the amount of the annual dues of the hod carriers' union. It is considerably less than the annual membership dues for one individual in any fashionable club.

Look in on any church service and you will see a company of people no better dressed than those who would be in attendance on a Chamber of Commerce dinner, a plumbers' ball, or a farmers' picnic.

The average lodge hall, frequented by workmen, is as well or better furnished than the average church. The moving picture houses are almost invariably more elaborately equipped. Yet no one ever dreams of calling these rich men's institutions.

To Raise $300,000
For Preacher Pensions

Fergus Falls, Minn., Oct. 2.—(UP)—A campaign to raise between $250,000 and $300,000 to provide pensions for retired preachers was launched today by the Northern Minnesota Methodist Conference meeting here.

The funds to be provided by subscription will compensate all ministers past the age of 65 with 60 per cent of their average salary while active.

A group insurance plan for ministers was also adopted.

Four applicants were admitted to ministry in the Northern Minnesota conference today. They are: Fred W. Kain, Two Harbors; Albert E. Martin, Allendale, Mo.; Stanley C. Pritchard, London, England; and Edmund G. Williamson, Roseville, Ill. Ordination services will be held Sunday.

The laymen divisions of the conference opened this afternoon.

THE FLORIDA FEVER

THE Florida fever is really a worse affliction than the California kind. The Florida fever subjects its patient to extreme vagaries. Whereas you and I are content to deal in dollars and cents and think the loss of two bits is something to be checked up, the Florida fever patient sees nothing but figures in the tens and hundreds of thousands columns.

According to our notion, the average real estate firm in Florida must have a set of adding machines geared up to the millions columns, something like Germany had when its wall paper marks ran to destruction.

As matters stand now in Florida, it's only food and passenger trains that get any leeway. A man from New York shipped down his automobile and they could not land it. There wasn't an inch space on an ocean dock, and so the car came back.

New additions are being added daily to Florida realty and the Everglades are being pushed back like a tidal wave. One of our residents is reported taking his whole family to Florida and finding that land he bought years ago when it took a tincup to measure it, has now receded from the swamps and waters and is next door to Miami.

The average Florida town offers scenery and climate, and grapefruit, bananas and oranges picked from your own orchard, and beautiful bathing girls in abbreviated costumes swimming past your front door dock, and bands playing in the moonlight, and traffic cops who are so polite they apologize when they tell you that you have broken speed laws, and lots are selling so rapidly that the first man in line at a real estate office often sells his lot at a $1,000 advance to the last man in the line as he files out of the office. New issues of subdivisions are issued like stock in a stock market and offerings are often over-subscribed like world's series or Notre Dame games.

People run around wearing only shirt, shoes and pants. The main occupation seems to be selling lots and running to the boat and train to see if anything has got past the food embargo.

Phillips eyed the burnt-offering with disfavor. Until just now he had not known that his employer used tobacco and the discovery came as a shock. He had been reared in a close home-circle, therefore he did not approve of women smoking; in particular he disapproved of the Countess, his Countess, smoking. After a moment of consideration, however, he asked himself what good reason there could be for his feeling. It was her own affair; why shouldn't a woman smoke if she felt like it? He was surprised at the unexpected liberality of his attitude. This country was indeed working a change in him; he was broadening rapidly. As a matter of fact, he assured himself, the Countess Courteau was an exceptional woman; she was quite different from the other members of her sex and the rules of decorum which obtained for them did not obtain for her. She was one in ten thousand, one in a million. Yes, and he was "her man."

While he was snatching a bit of midnight supper Pierce again heard the name of Kirby mentioned, and a reference to the big game in progress at the Ophir. Recalling Lucky Broad's words, he wondered if it were possible that Kirby and his girl were indeed the father and daughter who had applied at the Northern for shelter. It seemed incredible that a young woman of such apparent refinement could be a gambler's daughter, but if it were true she was not only the daughter of a "sporting man," but a very notorious one, judging from general comment. Prompted by curiosity, Pierce dropped in at the Ophir on his way back to work. He found the place crowded, as usual, but especially so at the rear, where the games were running. When he had edged his way close enough to command a view of the faro-table he discovered that Sam Kirby was, for a fact, the one-armed man he had met during the afternoon. He was seated, and close at his back was the gray-eyed, brown-haired girl with the pleasant voice. She was taking no active part in the game itself except to watch the wagers and the cases carefully. Now and then her father addressed a low-spoken word to her and she answered with a nod, a smile, or a shake of her head. She was quite at ease, quite at home; she was utterly oblivious to the close-packed ring of spectators encircling the table.

The slight amazed Phillips. He was shocked; he was mildly angered and mildly amused at the false impression this young woman had given. It seemed that his judgment of female types was exceedingly poor. "Who is Mr. Kirby?" he inquired of his nearest neighbor.

"Big sport. He's rich—or he was; I heard he just lost a string of race horses. He makes a fortune and he spends it overnight. He's on his way 'inside' now with a big saloon outfit. That's Letty, his girl."

Another man laughed under his breath, saying: "Old Sam won't bet a nickel unless she's with him. He's superstitious."

"I guess he has reason to be. She's his rudder," the first speaker explained.

Mr. Kirby rapped sharply upon the table with his steel hook that served as his left hand, then, when a waiter cleared a passageway through the crowd, he mutely invited the house employees to drink. The dealer declined, the lookout and the case-keeper ordered whiskey, and Kirby signified by a nod that the same would do for him. But his daughter laid a hand upon his arm. He argued with her briefly, then he shrugged and changed his order.

"Make it a cigar," he said, with a smile. "Boss's orders."

There was a ripple of laughter. "Sam's a bad actor when he's drinking," one of Pierce's informants told him. "Letty keeps him pretty straight, but once in a while he gets away. When he does—oh, boy!"

Long after he had returned to his tasks the memory of that still-faced girl in the foul, tobacco-laden atmosphere of the gambling-hall remained to bother Pierce Phillips; he could not get over his amazement and his annoyance at mistaking her for a—well, for a good girl.

Early in the morning, when he warily went forth in quest of breakfast and a bed, he learned that the game at the Ophir was still going on. "I want you to hire enough packers to take this stuff over in one trip—two at the most. Engage all you can. Offer any price." The Countess was speaking. She had snatched a few hours' sleep and was now back at the hotel as fresh as ever.

"You must take more rest," Pierce told her. "You'll wear yourself out at this rate."

She smiled brightly and shook her head, but she persisted. "Go back to sleep and let me attend to the work. I'm strong; nothing tires me."

"Nor me. I'll rest when we get to Dawson. Have those packers here day after tomorrow morning."

There were numerous freighters in Dyea, outfits with animals, too, some of them, but inquiry developed the fact that none were free to accept a contract of this size at such short notice therefore Pierce went to the Indian village and asked for the chief. Failing to discover the old man, he began a tent-to-tent search, and while so engaged he stumbled upon Joe McCaskey.

The outcast was lying on a bed of boughs; his face was flushed and his eyes were bright with fever. Evidently, in avoiding the town he had sought shelter here and the natives had taken him in without question.

Overcoming his first impulse to quietly withdraw, Pierce bent down to the fellow and said, with genuine pity: "I'm sorry for you, Joe. Is there anything I can do?"

McCaskey stared up at him wildly; then a light of recognition kindled in his black eyes. It changed to that baleful gleam of hatred. His hair lay low upon his forehead and through it he glared. His face was covered with a smut of beard which made him even more repellent.

"I thought you were Jim," he croaked. "But Jim's—dead."

"You're sick. Can I help you? Do you want money or—"

"Jim's dead," the man repeated. "You killed him!"

"? Nonsense. Don't talk—"

"You killed him. You!" McCaskey's unblinking stare became positively venomous; he showed his teeth in a frightful grin. "You killed him. There's more of us. Plenty more. We'll get you."

He appeared to derive a ferocious enjoyment from his threat, for he dwelt upon it. He began to curse his visitor so foully that Pierce backed out of the tent and let the flap fall. It had been an unpleasant encounter; it left an unpleasant taste in his mouth.

As he went on in search of the village shaman he heard Joe muttering: "Jim's dead! Dead! Jim's dead!"

CHAPTER VII

Sam Kirby's outfit was one of the largest, one of the costliest and one of the most complete that had ever been landed on the Dyea beach, for Kirby was a man who did things in a large way. He was a plunger; he had long since become case-hardened to risks and he knew how to weigh probabilities; hence the fact that he had staked his all upon one throw did not in the least disturb him.

Most men are successful in direct proportion to their ability to select and retain capable assistants. Fortune had favored Sam Kirby by presenting him with a daughter whose caution and good sense admirably supplemented his own best qualities, and he was doubly blessed in possessing the intense, nay, the ferocious, loyalty of one Danny Royal, a dependable retainer who had graduated from various minor positions into a sort of castellan, an Admiral Crichton, a good left hand to replace that missing member which Kirby had lost during the white-hot climax of a certain celebrated feud—a feud, by the way, which had added a notch to the ivory handle of Sam's famous six-shooter. This Danny Royal was all things. He could take any shift in a gambling-house, he was an accomplished fixer, he had been a jockey and had handled the Kirby string of horses. He was a miner of sorts, too, having superintended the Roulette Mine during its brief and prosperous history; as a trainer he was without a peer. He had made book on many tracks; he it was who had brought out the filly Roulette, Sam Kirby's best-known thoroughbred, and "mopped up" with her. Both mine and mare Danny had named after Kirby's girl and under Danny's management both had been quick producers. All in all, Royal was considered by those who knew him best as a master of many trades and a Jack of none. He was an irreligious man, but he possessed a code which he lived up to strictly; epitomized it ran as follows: "Sam Kirby's will be done!" He believed in but one god, and that Roulette Kirby was his profit.

Equipped with the allegiance of such a man as Royal, together with several tons of high-proof spirits, a stock of case-goods and cigars, some gambling paraphernalia, and a moderate bank-roll with which to furnish the same, old Sam felt safe in setting out for any country where gold was mined and where the trails were new.

Of course he took his daughter with him. Sooner than leave her behind he would have severed his remaining hand. Roulette and Agnes, they constituted the foundation upon which the Kirby fortunes rested, they were the rocks to which Sam clung, they were his assets and his liabilities, his adjuncts and his adornments. Agnes was his gun.

Having seen his freight safely ashore, Kirby left Royal in charge of it, first impressing upon him certain comprehensive and explicit instructions; then he and Roulette and Agnes went up the trail and over the Chilkoot. Somehow, between the three of them, they intended to have a scow built and ready when Danny landed the last pound of merchandise at Linderman.

Mr. Royal was an energetic little person. He began an immediate hunt for packers, only to discover that another outfit was ahead of his and that no men were immediately available. He was resourceful, he was in the habit of meeting and overcoming obstacles, hence this one did not greatly trouble him, once he became acquainted with the situation.

Phillips eyed the burnt-offering with disfavor. Until just now he had not known that his employer used tobacco and the discovery came as a shock. He had been reared in a close home-circle, therefore he did not approve of women smoking; in particular he disapproved of the Countess, his Countess, smoking. After a moment of consideration, however, he asked himself what good reason there could be for his feeling. It was her own affair; why shouldn't a woman smoke if she felt like it? He was surprised at the unexpected liberality of his attitude. This country was indeed working a change in him; he was broadening rapidly. As a matter of fact, he assured himself, the Countess Courteau was an exceptional woman; she was quite different from the other members of her sex and the rules of decorum which obtained for them did not obtain for her. She was one in ten thousand, one in a million. Yes, and he was "her man."

While he was snatching a bit of midnight supper Pierce again heard the name of Kirby mentioned, and a reference to the big game in progress at the Ophir. Recalling Lucky Broad's words, he wondered if it were possible that Kirby and his girl were indeed the father and daughter who had applied at the Northern for shelter. It seemed incredible that a young woman of such apparent refinement could be a gambler's daughter, but if it were true she was not only the daughter of a "sporting man," but a very notorious one, judging from general comment. Prompted by curiosity, Pierce dropped in at the Ophir on his way back to work. He found the place crowded, as usual, but especially so at the rear, where the games were running. When he had edged his way close enough to command a view of the faro-table he discovered that Sam Kirby was, for a fact, the one-armed man he had met during the afternoon. He was seated, and close at his back was the gray-eyed, brown-haired girl with the pleasant voice. She was taking no active part in the game itself except to watch the wagers and the cases carefully. Now and then her father addressed a low-spoken word to her and she answered with a nod, a smile, or a shake of her head. She was quite at ease, quite at home; she was utterly oblivious to the close-packed ring of spectators encircling the table.

The sight amazed Phillips. He was shocked; he was mildly angered and mildly amused at the false impression this young woman had given. It seemed that his judgment of female types was exceedingly poor. "Who is Mr. Kirby?" he inquired of his nearest neighbor.

"Big sport. He's rich—or he was; I heard he just lost a string of race horses. He makes a fortune and he spends it overnight. He's on his way 'inside' now with a big saloon outfit. That's Letty, his girl."

Another man laughed under his breath, saying: "Old Sam won't bet a nickel unless she's with him. He's superstitious."

"I guess he has reason to be. She's his rudder," the first speaker explained.

Mr. Kirby rapped sharply upon the table with his steel hook that served as his left hand, then, when a waiter cleared a passageway through the crowd, he mutely invited the house employees to drink. The dealer declined, the lookout and the case-keeper ordered whiskey, and Kirby signified by a nod that the same would do for him. But his daughter laid a hand upon his arm. He argued with her briefly, then he shrugged and changed his order.

"Make it a cigar," he said, with a smile. "Boss's orders."

There was a ripple of laughter. "Sam's a bad actor when he's drinking," one of Pierce's informants told him. "Letty keeps him pretty straight, but once in a while he gets away. When he does—oh, boy!"

Long after he had returned to his tasks the memory of that still-faced girl in the foul, tobacco-laden atmosphere of the gambling-hall remained to bother Pierce Phillips; he could not get over his amazement and his annoyance at mistaking her for a—well, for a good girl.

Early in the morning, when he wearily went forth in quest of breakfast and a bed, he learned that the game at the Ophir was still going on. "I want you to hire enough packers to take this stuff over in one trip—two at the most. Engage all you can. Offer any price." The Countess was speaking. She had snatched a few hours' sleep and was now back at the hotel as fresh as ever.

"You must take more rest," Pierce told her. "You'll wear yourself out at this rate."

She smiled brightly and shook her head, but he persisted. "Go back to sleep and let me attend to the work. I'm strong; nothing tires me."

"Nor me. I'll rest when we get to Dawson. Have those packers here day after tomorrow morning."

There were numerous freighters in Dyea, outfits with animals, too, some of them, but inquiry developed the fact that none were free to accept a contract of this size at such short notice therefore Pierce went to the Indian village and asked for the chief. Failing to discover the old man, he began a tent-to-tent search, and while so engaged he stumbled upon Joe McCaskey.

The outcast was lying on a bed of boughs; his face was flushed and his eyes were bright with fever. Evidently, in avoiding the town he had sought shelter here and the natives had taken him in without question.

Overcoming his first impulse to quietly withdraw, Pierce bent down to the fellow and said, with genuine pity: "I'm sorry for you, Joe. Is there anything I can do?"

McCaskey stared up at him wildly; then a light of recognition kindled in his black eyes. It changed to that baleful gleam of hatred. His hair lay low upon his forehead and through it he glared. His face was covered with a smut of beard which made him even more repellent.

"I thought you were Jim," he croaked. "But Jim's dead."

"You're sick. Can I help you? Do you want money or—"

"Jim's dead," the man repeated.

"You killed him?"

"Nonsense. Don't talk—"

"You killed him. You!" McCaskey's unblinking stare became positively venomous; he showed his teeth in a frightful grin. "You killed him. There's more of us. Plenty more. We'll get you." He appeared to derive a ferocious enjoyment from his threat, for he dwelt upon it. He began to curse his visitor so foully that Pierce backed out of the tent and let the flap fall. It had been an unpleasant encounter; it left an unpleasant taste in his mouth.

As he went on in search of the village shaman he heard Joe muttering: "Jim's dead! Dead! Jim's dead!"

CHAPTER VII

Sam Kirby's outfit was one of the largest, one of the costliest and one of the most complete that had ever been landed on the Dyea beach, for Kirby was a man who did things in a large way. He was a plunger; he had long since become case-hardened to risks and he knew how to weigh probabilities; hence the fact that he had staked his all upon one throw did not in the least disturb him.

Most men are successful in direct proportion to their ability to select and retain capable assistants. Fortune had favored Sam Kirby by presenting him with a daughter whose caution and good sense admirably supplemented his own best qualities, and he was doubly blessed in possessing the intense, nay, the ferocious, loyalty of one Danny Royal, a dependable retainer who had graduated from various minor positions into a sort of castellan, an Admiral Crichton, a good left hand to replace that missing member which Kirby had lost during the white-hot climax of a certain celebrated feud—a feud, by the way, which had added a notch to the ivory handle of Sam's famous six-shooter. This Danny Royal was all things. He could take any shift in a gambling-house, he was an accomplished fixer, he had been a jockey and had handled the Kirby string of horses. He was a miner of sorts, too, having superintended the Roulette Mine during its brief and prosperous history; as a trainer he was without a peer. He had made book on many tracks; he it was who had brought out the filly Roulette, Sam Kirby's best-known thoroughbred, and "mopped up" with her. Both mine and mare Danny had named after Kirby's girl and under Danny's management both had been quick producers. All in all, Royal was considered by those who knew him best as a master of many trades and a Jack of none. He was an irreligious man, but he possessed a code which he lived up to strictly; epitomized it ran as follows: "Sam Kirby's will be done!" He believed in but one god, and that Roulette Kirby was his profit.

Equipped with the allegiance of such a man as Royal, together with several tons of high-proof spirits, a stock of case-goods and cigars, some gambling paraphernalia, and a moderate bank-roll with which to furnish the same, old Sam felt safe in setting out for any country where gold was mined and where the trails were new.

Of course he took his daughter with him. Sooner than leave her behind he would have severed his remaining hand. Roulette and Agnes, they constituted the foundation upon which the Kirby fortunes rested, they were the rocks to which Sam clung, they were his assets and his liabilities, his adjuncts and his adornments. Agnes was his gun.

Having seen his freight safely ashore, Kirby left Royal in charge of it, first impressing upon him certain comprehensive and explicit instructions; then he and Roulette and Agnes went up the trail and over the Chilkooot. Somewhere, between the three of them, they intended to have a scow built and ready when Danny landed the last pound of merchandise at Linderman.

Mr. Royal was an energetic little person. He began an immediate hunt for packers, only to discover that another outfit was ahead of his and that no men were immediately available. ANNUAL CLASH OF GOPHERS-FLICKERTAILS

GOPHERS FACE NORTH DAKOTA THIS AFTERNOON

CONFIDENCE LESS PRONOUNCED THAN USUAL IN MINNESOTA CAMP

4 VALUABLE LINEMEN BARRED BY ELIGIBILITY RULING

Minneapolis, Oct. 3.—(UP)—Confidence was less pronounced than usual on the Minnesota campus today as the Gophers faced their opening game against North Dakota, traditional loser of the annual contest.

An eleventh hour ruling by the eligibility board yesterday barred four valuable Minnesota linemen. Harold Hanson, promising guard, was ruled out but has a chance to be back for closing games of the season. Paul Bunker, guard, Bill Hess, guard and Tom Withrow, center, are out for good.

With the Gopher forward wall of questionable strength at best and decidedly not at its best with the four men missing there is apprehension in the Spears' camp. North Dakota is reputed to be unusually strong.

The starting lineup for Minnesota in today's game is problematical. At the final practice last night more than 30 candidates took places on the team. The starting signal practice arrangement was taken as an indication of Spears' plans for today's opener.

Almquist, Nydahl, Ascher and Murrell were in the backfield. If his combination starts, the forward pass attack is likely to be used. All of the backs in question have exhibited outstanding proficiency in the aerial game.

The lineup for North Dakota is less uncertain with a number of veterans on the squad whose services will probably be in demand for the entire game. The invaders arrived yesterday 22 strong.

It is the 15th annual clash between the Flickertails and Gophers.

N. W. WILDCATS TACKLE SO. DAKOTA

Evanston, Ill., Oct. 3.—(UP)—With five of his regulars on the side lines, nursing injured hips and ankles, Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite today sent his Northwestern Wildcats against the powerful South Dakota eleven.

Ralph "Moon" Baker, the most brilliant of the purple's back field stars, will not get into the game, it was said and four of his team mates, including two other backfield men will also watch the game from the side.

Northwestern defeated South Dakota 2 to 0 last year but the Coyotes are greatly improved and are expected to battle on even terms with the conference team.

MRS. ALEXA FRASER AND MISS COLLETTE ARE UP IN FINALS

St. Louis Country Club, Clayton, Mo., Oct. 3.—(UP)—Mrs. Alexa Stirling Fraser of Ottawa, Canada, and Miss Glenna Collette of Providence, will fight it out today for the women's national amateur championship. Both have previously held the title.

Mrs. Fraser reached the finals after one of the hardest matches she had encountered when Miss Louis Fordyce of Youngstown, forced her to go 19 holes to win one up.

Almost equally thrilling was the semi final match which Miss Collette won from Miss Edith Cummings of Chicago one up. Miss Collette forced to play a perfect shot to win on the 18th hole putted perfectly and halved the hole giving her the match.

U OF IOWA AND ARKANSAS CLASH

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 3.—(UP)—Twenty-three Arkansas grid players were prepared to display Southern football tactics against Coach Burt Ingwerson's hawkeye eleven when the teams clash in Iowa's first game of the season this afternoon. Play will be slowed as a result of a heavy downpour and a soggy field.

Vampire bats have a great range and are found from Mexico almost to the end of South America, says Nature Magazine. United Press Staff Correspondent
Urbana, Ill., Oct. 3.—Red Grange today faced the first game of his last year of collegiate football competition, leading the University of Illinois eleven of which he is captain against the Nebraska cornhuskers.

Grange did not play a stellar role in the preseason game between Illinois and Nebraska last year because Coach Bob Zuppke was too crafty to expose all his Grange formations before the big ten championship season opened and it is believed the game will hold true this afternoon. The red haired flash will be in the game however and will be given the ball often enough to satisfy the spectators.

Illinois won last year's game, 9 to 6, and both teams have improved in about the same proportions which is indicative of a hard game today. The Illini outweigh Nebraska about two pounds to the man.

If Zuppke does not use many of his favorite formations built around Grange it will not be because he does not respect the cornhusker team, but because he will save everything that he can for the champion season. Every team that Illinois will meet during the balance of the season is certain to have scouts here today to study Grange and the plays in which he carries the ball.

It was against Nebraska two years ago that Red Grange started his meteoric gridiron career. Three times in the first quarter he sprinted across the goal line. From that time on he was a marked man in every game he played.

The Nebraska squad appeared in excellent condition for the battle.

SENATOR OUTFIELD EXCELLS ON OFFENSE; PIRATES FASTER AND HEAVIER HITTERS

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Oct. 3.—During the Labor Day double-header, when the Washington Senators were embalmg the hopes of the Philadelphia Athletics, the Washington outfield threw out four runners at the plate and won both games.

Philadelphia critics roasted the Athletic player for stupid base running but if they had known the real reason they would have marvelled at the brains and the daring of the Washington defense.

One of the umpires who worked in the game told the writer what happened on the field and he said it was the smartest and boldest piece of work he had seen in years of experience.

The Athletics had the tying run on third base four times with one down. The first time Harris called his outfielders in.

"Play close for this fellow and try to make the out at the plate," he told Goslin, Rice and McNeely. Rice said that the batter was a strong right field hitter and might knock the ball over his head if he came in too close.

"We've got to take that chance," Harris said. "We're gambling against that run. If he hits over your head it would be long enough to score that run anyway and if he hits in front of you you're close enough for a quick play at the plate."

Rice came in almost on top of Joe Harris, at first base, and Harris moved in toward the platter. The batter smacked a line drive right in front of Rice who made a beautiful throw to the plate and caught the runner by three feet.

That play was pulled not only once but four times when the game was in the balance.

It was pointed out in yesterday's story that the Washington infield was superior to that of the Pirates as an effective working combination and the same holds good with reference to the outfield. The reason is found above.

Individually Barnhart, Carey and Cuyler are superior to Goslin, McNeely and Rice, particularly by reason of their speed and hitting but as a combination on the defense that Yesterday's Hero—Jimmy Dykes, Philadelphia third baseman, hit the first ball pitched five times in succession for a homer, a triple and three singles and helped beat the Yankees 10 to 0. Baumgartner pitched the shutout.

Howard Ehmke had no trouble holding a patched up team and the Red Sox won their third straight game from the Senators 11 to 2.

Home runs by Toporcher and Blades gave the Cardinals a 4 to 3 victory over the Cubs.

Washington outfield does not suffer by comparison. It is not as brilliant as the infield but it has done its part in winning two pennants.

The Pittsburgh outfield is the fastest in baseball both on the defense and on the offense.

Cuyler is one of the coming stars of the game. He is a star now but he should develop into one of the great outfielders of all times. He covers his territory well, he is a strong hitter and the flash of speed on the bases. Some critics say that he is not a good money player.

Sam Rice, playing right field for the Senators, is a smart player, a fast man, a good fielder and a fine thrower. There is little to choose from between these two players but Rice certainly is a great money player and should be steeper in the pinches.

Max Carey, veteran that he is, still is one of the fastest men in baseball. He is a brilliant fielder, a reliable hitter and the toughest man in baseball to get on the bases. Carey is a mart player and is perhaps the key-tone of the Pirate offense and defense. He is a much more valuable player than young Earl McNeely, who will play center for the Senators.

National League players said that Barnhart, the Pittsburgh left fielder, was the most improved player in the league this year. He is a terrific hitter and his fielding has improved vastly. He is not a graceful fielder and he can't come in as fast as some fielders.

Goos Goslin, who will play left field for the Senators, also has his fielding faults and he isn't the smartest player in baseball but he is a hard hitter although he doesn't always deliver in the pinches. Goslin also has had several run-ins with Buck Harris, manager of the club, and he may not be the best of team players.

The Washington outfield can play with more assurance and range farther and wider on the defense than the Pittsburgh outfielders can because of the brilliant infield in front of them. Rice and McNeely will have much less work to do than Cuyler and Carey unless the right side of the Pirate infield is steeper than it has been all season.

WISCONSIN OPENS QUEST FOR THE BIG TEN TITLE

RAIN PROMISED SLOW FIELD FOR BADGER-AMES BATTLE

WISCONSIN MAY BE HANDICAPPED BY LOSS OF TWO REGULARS

Madison, Wis., Oct. 3.—(UP)—Drilled for long hours during the past week on a defense for the speedy running and passing of Sam William's Ames football team, the University of Wisconsin gridders, under the leadership of George Little, today were prepared to open their 1925 quest for the big ten title.

Rain last night and murky weather this morning promised a slow field not much to the liking of the Badgers. Indications were that the Wisconsin team would go into the battle today minus the services of two regulars, Ray Stipek, veteran guard, and "Red" Kreuse, pile driving full back, who were injured in scrimmage last week.

Transition Easy From "Timepiece" to "Watch"

In taking a timepiece from his pocket it is safe to guess that the average man gives no thought to the question of why his watch is called a "watch." The explanation dates far back into history, and through many languages.

The original use of the word "watch" was to indicate "keeping watch" or "to be on watch." From that it was an easy change to use the word to indicate the person set to do the duty of sentry in "keeping watch," and this person became known as "the night watch" when his duty was at night.

From this the word came to be used as designating the period of time which a sentry was on duty, as in the phrase "the length of his watch was three hours." Next came the application of the word to a specified time of the night. This use is found in the Gospel of St. Mark in the phrase "about the fourth watch of the night" (Mark 6:48).

It was a natural development that this should lead to the use of the word to designate a timepiece for keeping track of the time. In this sense its earliest use was with reference to a candle, marked off into sectional lengths, each length being planned to occupy a certain length of time in burning.

Work English Farms as in Days of Old

Driving along country roads anywhere in England, you will be struck by the number of men at work in the fields with hand implements, usually hoes. Women using like implements are not an uncommon sight. Over the greater part of the country, hedges are an obvious obstacle to power machinery.

But English agriculture grew up on cheap and abundant labor. A surplus of hands rather than a scarcity has been a common condition. Cheap labor is not an incentive to improvements. Besides, old ways and old ideas are not to be got rid of by a wave of the hand.

A scholar who has given much attention to the subject recently said that if the steward of a manor in the reign of Henry III had revisited a farm village in the reign of George II he would have found little change—the same quality of live stock.

That means a stretch of five centuries. At least one outstanding thing that strikes an American as odd he would find unchanged today.—Will Payne in the Saturday Evening Post.

Lost Caucasian Race

The Hamites were one of the three great families of the white or Caucasian race, the two others being the Aryans and the Semites. They are supposed to have been closely allied to the Semitic family, and to have broken away from it at a very remote epoch; but when and where this separation took place are matters of pure conjecture. According to one theory, they formerly occupied the regions of the Euphrates and the Tigris and made their way thence through Syria and Arabia into Africa. Their leading historic representatives are the Egyptians and possibly the Chaldeans.—Kansas City Star.

Italy and Florida

The climate of the northern part of Italy resembles that of Florida. The mean annual temperature varies from 61 degrees Fahrenheit to 64 degrees Fahrenheit. The mean summer temperature does not exceed 80 degrees Fahrenheit. The rainfall occurs mostly in the fall and winter months.

ANNUAL CLASH OF GOPHERS-FLICKERTAILS

GOPHERS FACE NORTH DAKOTA THIS AFTERNOON

CONFIDENCE LESS PRONOUNCED THAN USUAL IN MINNEAPOLIS

4 VALUABLE LINEMEN BARRED BY ELIGIBILITY RULING

Minneapolis, Oct. 3.—(UP)—Confidence was less pronounced than usual on the Minnesota campus today as the Gophers faced their opening game against North Dakota, traditional loser of the annual contest.

An eleventh hour ruling by the eligibility board yesterday barred four valuable Minnesota linemen. Harold Hanson, promising guard, was ruled out but has a chance to be back for closing games of the season.

Paul Bunker, guard, Bill Hess, guard and Tom Withrow, center, are out for good.

With the Gopher forward wall of questionable strength at best and decidedly not at its best with the four men missing there is apprehension in the Spears' camp.

The starting lineup for Minnesota in today's game is problematical. At the final practice last night more than 30 candidates took places on the team.

N. W. WILDCATS TACKLE SO. DAKOTA

Evanston, Ill., Oct. 3.—(UP)—With five of his regulars on the side lines, nursing injured hips and ankles, Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite today sent his Northwestern Wildcats against the powerful South Dakota eleven.

Ralph "Moon" Baker, the most brilliant of the purple's back field stars, will not get into the game, it was said and four of his team mates, including two other backfield men will also watch the game from the side.

Northwestern defeated South Dakota 2 to 0 last year but the Coyotes are greatly improved and are expected to battle on even terms with the conference team.

MRS. ALEXA FRASER AND MISS COLLETTE ARE UP IN FINALS

St. Louis Country Club, Clayton, Mo., Oct. 3.—(UP)—Mrs. Alexa Stirling Fraser of Ottawa, Canada, and Miss Glenna Collette of Providence, will fight it out today for the women's national amateur championship. Both have previously held the title.

Mrs. Fraser reached the finals after one of the hardest matches she had encountered when Miss Louis Fordyce of Youngstown, forced her to go 19 holes to win one up.

Almost equally thrilling was the semi final match which Miss Collette won from Miss Edith Cummings of Chicago one up.

BRAINERD COM'L COLLEGE TERM

Fall Term Opened in September With Gratifying Enrollment of New Students

NEW CLASSES ARE STARTED

New Teacher Takes Over Bookkeeping And Commercial Work

The fall term of the Brainerd Commercial College opened on September 8, with a very gratifying enrollment of new students. In addition new classes have been started each week since, and those who could not start during this time are making arrangements to enter a little earlier in the fall, so that a big increase in enrollment is expected with the advent of colder weather. Several former students who took positions for the summer are now returning to complete their courses and receive their diplomas.

Miss Florence M. Reed, of Valley City, N. D., is the new bookkeeping and commercial teacher, at the college. Miss Reed has had considerable experience both in teaching and in commercial work in actual business life, and comes to the Brainerd school very well qualified and highly recommended.

Miss Rosa J. Anderson, the principal, is giving her entire attention to the shorthand and typewriting departments. Miss Anderson is an instructor of long experience, has also had practical training in the business world and has proven herself a teacher of a very high order. A large list of students who received their training under her supervision are holding respectable positions and are very successful in business lines.

A second, or mid-fall term starts on next Monday, October 5th, at which time quite a number of new students expect to begin their courses. Preparations are now being made for the annual commencement, which will be held at the time there will be a large class graduating, the majority of the graduates being already placed in good positions by the college. Further details of this commencement will be announced later.

PROCLAMATION

To the Citizens of Brainerd:

The week of October 4 to 10 has been set aside by the Honorable Governor of our state as "Fire Prevention Week," and I call on the citizens of Brainerd to give careful thought to and properly observe the week.

In view of the fact that 15,000 lives are lost each year in fires and 618 homes suffer from fire each 24 hours, and that three out of every four fires need not start, I urge all business houses and residents to clean up all rubbish and unnecessary material around their homes, places of business and basements, to carefully inspect stoves, furnaces and chimneys before starting fires for winter.

In view of the tremendous losses caused by fires, let us observe "Fire Prevention Week" not only this week, but 52 weeks of each year.

C. W. Brown and S. S. Mills, both of Minneapolis, completed negotiations Friday morning for the purchase of the garage business of the Ten Thousand Lakes garage, formerly conducted by A. J. Welliver, and have already taken possession.

The garage will be conducted under the same name for the present, although its name may be changed later. It is the intention of the new firm to continue the agency of Studebaker automobiles and to conduct a complete service station for this make of car, also an up-to-date repair department for all automobiles.

Both of the new proprietors are men of long experience in the garage business, and come to Brainerd very well equipped to carry on their newly acquired interests. Each is very enthusiastic about the prospects in the Brainerd territory and feel that there are excellent opportunities in their line.

Mr. Mills is a married man, and is bringing his family to the city at once, having secured apartments in the Ransford annex.

A large announcement of the company's plans will be published as an advertisement within the next few days.

PLEDGED TO ALPHA PHI

Miss Ruth Beise, Daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Beise, Joins Sorority

Miss Ruth Beise was pledged to the Alpha Phi sorority at the University of Minnesota on Friday afternoon. Her friends, Miss Virginia Stewart, who has visited here and is well known among the younger set of Brainerd, was pledged to the Alpha Gamma Delta sorority.

Young women students of the University, numbering 200, signified their choice of Greek letter sororities on Friday afternoon by going to the society of their selection among the 18 houses to be pledged. This is following the annual custom at the University, the pledges being made between rows of fraternity men.

The pledging ceremonies followed a week's period of "rushing" and "silences," which extended from Monday until 5 o'clock Friday afternoon, the hour of the pledging.

BRAINERD COM'L COLLEGE TERM

Fall Term Opened in September With Gratifying Enrollment of New Students

NEW CLASSES ARE STARTED

New Teacher Takes Over Bookkeeping And Commercial Work

The fall term of the Brainerd Commercial College opened on September 8, with a very gratifying enrollment of new students. In addition new classes have been started each week since, and those who could not start during this time are making arrangements to enter a little earlier in the fall, so that a big increase in enrollment is expected with the advent of colder weather. Several former students who took positions for the summer are now returning to complete their courses and receive their diplomas.

Miss Florence M. Reed, of Valley City, N. D., is the new bookkeeping and commercial teacher, at the college. Miss Reed has had considerable experience both in teaching and in commercial work in actual business life, and comes to the Brainerd school very well qualified and highly recommended.

Miss Rosa J. Anderson, the principal, is giving her entire attention to the shorthand and typewriting departments. Miss Anderson is an instructor of long experience, has also had practical training in the business world and has proven herself a teacher of a very high order. A large list of students who received their training under her supervision are holding respectable positions and are very successful in business lines.

A second, or mid-fall term starts on next Monday, October 5th, at which time quite a number of new students expect to begin their courses. Preparations are now being made for the annual autumn commencement, which time there will be a large class graduating, the majority of the graduates being already placed in good positions by the college. Further details of this commencement will be announced later.

AMERICAN LEGION

PROCLAMATION

To the Citizens of Brainerd:

The week of October 4 to 10 has been set aside by the Honorable Governor of our state as "Fire Prevention Week," and I call on the citizens of Brainerd to give careful thought to and properly observe the week.

In view of the fact that 15,000 lives are lost each year in fires and 618 homes suffer from fire each 24 hours, and that three out of every four fires need not start, I urge all business houses and residents to clean up all rubbish and unnecessary material around their homes, places of business and basements, to carefully inspect stoves, furnaces and chimneys before starting fires for winter.

In view of the tremendous losses caused by fires, let us observe "Fire Prevention Week" not only this week, but 52 weeks of each year.

CORN IS WELL MATURED

Garden Produce of Fine Quality And Prize Winning Class

John Wood, a farmer living on the Anton Mahlum farm on North Long lake, has brought in some samples of corn and garden produce which are on display in the county commissioners room at the court house, and which are causing considerable comment.

His corn is Minnesota No. 13, yellow dent. The ears are especially well filled and long, some weighing as much as one and one-half pounds. It is well matured and shows conclusively what can be done with this crop in the vicinity of Brainerd.

The garden produce includes some fine samples of watermelons, cantaloup, carrots and onions, all vegetables of a prize-winning class, very large and well matured.

Mr. Wood's garden has been the talk of his locality all summer, and a number of people have made the trip out there just to view the excellent results that he has obtained.

C. W. Brown and S. S. Mills, both of Minneapolis, completed negotiations Friday morning for the purchase of the garage business of the Ten Thousand Lakes garage, formerly conducted by A. J. Welliver, and have already taken possession.

The garage will be conducted under the same name for the present, although its name may be changed later. It is the intention of the new firm to continue the agency of Studebaker automobiles and to conduct a complete service station for this make of car, also an up-to-date repair department for all automobiles.

Both of the new proprietors are men of long experience in the garage business, and come to Brainerd very well equipped to carry on their newly acquired interests. Each is very enthusiastic about the prospects in the Brainerd territory and feel that there are excellent opportunities in their line.

Mr. Mills is a married man, and is bringing his family to the city at once, having secured apartments in the Ramsford annex.

A large announcement of the company's plans will be published as an advertisement within the next few days.

SOUTH DAKOTA STORM CENTER IN 1926 POLITICS

SPLIT IN REPUBLICAN RANKS CONCERNS PARTY LEADERS

WASHINGTON "VIEWS WITH ALARM" COMING PRIMARY

Pierre, S. D., Oct. 3. — (UP) — South Dakota is first at bat in the 1926 series of elections and an unequalled political storm is raging.

A split in republican ranks concerns party leaders. There is evidence that Washington "views with alarm" the coming primary.

Forces that fought together for a Coolidge victory last election are now at odds over administration of the state government. To keep clear of the political shrapnel is another White House problem.

Senator Peter Norbeck, already on the field, started a campaign for establishment of the rural credits system he fathered. With him in his fight have been Senator W. H. McMaster and Representative Royal C. Johnson.

Governor Carl Gunderson, former Governor S. H. Elrod and a legislative group are fighting back. State Senator C. M. Bailey of Sioux Falls and John B. Hanton, chairman of the governor's interim investigating committee are among them.

Congressman Williamson and Congressman Christopherson have kept clear of the fracas so far. One little man who handled millions of the people's money is the cause of it all. A. W. Ewert, looked upon by some as the goat of the situation, faces criminal prosecution. Already charged with defalcations totalling $296,437.59 from the rural credits board of which he was treasurer, Ewert will come under the scrutiny of a federal grand jury next week. He was president of the defunct National Bank of Commerce.

Accountants who fought for five months for the facts, have reconstructed and tied up to a penny dizzy financing in the rural credits board and the bank. These banking operations will furnish fireworks for the republican primary campaign.

Governor Gunderson already has indicated he will be a candidate for re-election. A friend said if he "got mad enough to run he might go to Washington." Verne O. Kennedy is in the field opposed to Gunderson's policies.

Presentation of the criminal cases against Ewert will "shake and rattle the political fences all over the state." Attorneys said many of political prominence figured interestingly in banking practices of the rural credits board under Ewert. Banks that were saved while hundreds failed may be named by attorneys.

According to the report of Ernst & Ernst, national accountants, the rural credits board had on deposit in closed banks a total of $1,156,319.09. These closed banks have been sued for the amounts. Deposits in open banks totalled $1,804,296.90 and efforts are being made to collect this.

Of the alleged shortage of $296,437.59, charged to Ewert, a total of $211,437.59 was traced to the Union Trust Company account in Ewert's bank. Such a firm existed prior to 1900, according to the investigators. When the Ewert bank closed February 4, 1925, there was no trace of the firm's account with the bank. Several pages were missing from the journal.

There were times when the Union Trust Company account was credited with millions of dollars of rural funds, the accountants said.

Cop Had Been There

A rickety flivver chugged down the street faster than the cop thought the owner ought to be driving.

The cop signalled him to stop, but the flivver kept right on going. After a pursuit, the cop demanded angrily: "What's the idea? Why didn't you stop when I told you to?"

"Well," answered the man, "it seemed a shame to stop after I spent two hours gettin' the ol' bus started."

It is reported the cop let him go.—Southern Tourist.

Germans Work Many Dogs

In Germany there are many dogs of all descriptions. Big dogs, little dogs, long-legged police dogs, legless dachshunds and others go to make up the four million dogs in that country—one to every fifteen persons. Over three-fourths of these dogs live in the country or rural districts, where they perform duties enough to earn their daily bread. There are more than five thousand dogs in the military and police services and they all must work hard for their living.—Exchange.

STOCK MARKET ACTIVE

New York, Oct. 3.—Extraordinary activity in the stock market which was stirred up by the relief felt in the speculative community over the retention of the 3½ per cent bank rate was fully maintained at the week end. For the third time this year transactions in a two hour session exceeded 1,000,000 shares, bringing the total of million share Saturday sessions in the history of the stock exchange to 22.

Further rapid advances took place in individual stocks including Air Reduction, Woolworth, Ward Baking B, Dodge Bros. A, and several issues of the specialty type.

However, pivotal stocks like United States Steel, American Can, General Motors and American Smelting were kept in check by profit taking and made no progress on the upside. But the selling in these issues was well absorbed and the general list continued to behave in confident fashion. The market closed higher.

RECORD IN SATURDAY STOCK MARKET

New York, Oct. 3.—All records of trading on the stock exchange since 1906, for the two hour Saturday session were broken today when total sales reached 1,274,400 shares.

This is only the 26th time in the entire history of the stock exchange that Saturday sales have passed the million mark.

The previous high for Saturday trading was established August 15, 1906, when sales totalled 1,603,430.

Early Handkerchiefs

Churchmen have been credited with being the first to use handkerchiefs in Europe, and for a time priests alone were permitted to carry them. Even they were subjected to certain restrictions of use, for the handkerchief formed part of the vestments of the cleric's office and as a "facial," by which name it was known, was worn by the priest officiating before the altar.

THE RESCUE TRAIN & SCENE IN "THE IRON HORSE"

"The Iron Horse" Proves to be Masterful Drama of a Nation's Triumph
In the presentation of "The Iron Horse," showing at the New Park tonight and Sunday William Fox gives to the screen a masterful production of a virile subject, mammoth in its compelling interest, and handled in such a manner that it soars to the highest pinnacle of cinema art.

Not a soul within reasonable distance of this theatre or any theatre so fortunate as to play this wonderful film should fail to see it, for it will leave an unforgettable impression.

From the very first instant it appears on the screen and you see that great character of a great Nation, Abe Lincoln, loved by the entire world in memory, giving encouragement to the ambition of David Brandon, senior, the surveyor who had the heroism to pioneer a pathway through the wilderness of our great frontiers, giving his life in the attempt. That great thought later becoming action when General Dodge put these thoughts into a vibrant pulsating reality by President Lincoln signing that immortal industrial document, the authority for the Union Pacific to wend its way westward and the Central Pacific Railroad to forge to the east, where they finally welded together, completing the greatest commercial highway known to humanity.

Audience Delighted at Suspense and Thrills in Latest Carey Western
A dashing hero, a pretty heroine, a desperate bad man, a couple of other characters thrown in to take sides with or against the hero, and some fast riding is all that most picture audiences require to vote a "western" a success. But let it be said to the credit of Hunt Stromberg, the producer, and Scott Dunlap, the director, that they were not satisfied to rely on this formula when they made "The Texas Trail," the latest Harry Carey picture. Tonight only at the Lyceum theatre.

Cane for Health

"Carry a walking cane for health and live longer," is the advice of a Chicago specialist, who says the gentleman swinging along with a walking stick is walking himself into a happier frame of mind. Old Nickname for Whisky

The name "John Barleycorn," used as a personification of malt liquor, is derived from an English tract of old date entitled "The Arraigning and Indicting of Sir John Barleycorn Knt," printed for Timothy Tossopot. Sir John Barleycorn appears as a person in a number of similar ballads by John Burns.

To Avoid Foot Trouble

The public health service gives the following information on standing and walking: In using the feet, it is important to (a) toe out a little, if at all, (b) throw the weight rather toward the outer side of the foot, (c) try to learn to use the toes to push as the foot leaves the ground, (d) in standing try to grasp with the toes, (e) in tiresome long standing toe-in on the weight-bearing foot.

The law of averages aims to demonstrate that while the trend of human affairs cannot be forecast with certainty, it can be worked out to a considerable extent arithmetically by arriving at averages based on statistics relating to the event. This law is not universally accepted by economists.

SOUTH DAKOTA STORM CENTER IN 1926 POLITICS

SPLIT IN REPUBLICAN RANKS CONCERNS PARTY LEADERS

WASHINGTON "VIEWS WITH ALARM" COMING PRIMARY

Pierre, S. D., Oct. 3. — (UP) — South Dakota is first at bat in the 1926 series of elections and an unequalled political storm is raging.

A split in republican ranks concerns party leaders. There is evidence that Washington "views with alarm" the coming primary.

Forces that fought together for a Coolidge victory last election are now at odds over administration of the state government. To keep clear of the political shrapnel is another White House problem.

Senator Peter Norbeck, already on the field, started a campaign for establishment of the rural credits system he fathered. With him in his fight have been Senator W. H. McMaster and Representative Royal C. Johnson.

Governor Carl Gunderson, former Governor S. H. Elrod and a legislative group are fighting back. State Senator C. M. Bailey of Sioux Falls and John B. Hanton, chairman of the governor's interim investigating committee are among them.

Congressman Williamson and Congressman Christopherson have kept clear of the fracas so far.

One little man who handled millions of the people's money is the cause of it all. A. W. Ewert, looked upon by some as the goat of the situation, faces criminal prosecution. Already charged with defalcations totalling $296,437.59 from the rural credits board of which he was treasurer, Ewert will come under the scrutiny of a federal grand jury next week. He was president of the defunct National Bank of Commerce.

Accountants who fought for five months for the facts, have reconstructed and tied up to a penny dizzy financing in the rural credits board and the bank. These banking operations will furnish fireworks for the republican primary campaign.

Governor Gunderson already has indicated he will be a candidate for re-election. A friend said if he "got mad enough to run he might go to Washington." Verne O. Kennedy is in the field opposed to Gunderson's policies.

Presentation of the criminal cases against Ewert will "shake and rattle the political fences all over the state." Attorneys said many of political prominence figured interestedly in banking practices of the rural credits board under Ewert. Banks that were saved while hundreds failed may be named by attorneys.

According to the report of Ernst & Ernst, national accountants, the rural credits board had on deposit in closed banks a total of $1,156,319.09. These closed banks have been sued for the amounts. Deposits in open banks totalled $1,804,296.90 and efforts are being made to collect this.

Of the alleged shortage of $296,437.59, charged to Ewert, a total of $211,437.59 was traced to the Union Trust Company account in Ewert's bank. Such a firm existed prior to 1900, according to the investigators. When the Ewert bank closed February 4, 1925, there was no trace of the firm's account with the bank. Several pages were missing from the journal.

There were times when the Union Trust Company account was credited with millions of dollars of rural funds, the accountants said.

Cop Had Been There

A rickety flivver chugged down the street faster than the cop thought the owner ought to be driving.

The cop signalled him to stop, but the flivver kept right on going.

After a pursuit, the cop demanded angrily: "What's the idea? Why didn't you stop when I told you to?"

"Well," answered the man, "it seemed a shame to stop after I spent two hours gettin' the ol' bus started."

It is reported the cop let him go.—Southern Tourist.

Germans Work Many Dogs

In Germany there are many dogs of all descriptions. Big dogs, little dogs, long-legged police dogs, legless dachshunds and others go to make up the four million dogs in that country—one to every fifteen persons. Over three-fourths of these dogs live in the country or rural districts, where they perform duties enough to earn their daily bread. There are more than five thousand dogs in the military and police services and they all must work hard for their living.—Exchange.

STOCK MARKET ACTIVE

New York, Oct. 3.—Extraordinary activity in the stock market which was stirred up by the relief felt in the speculative community over the retention of the 3½ per cent bank rate has fully manifested at the week end. For the third time this year transactions in a two hour session exceeded 1,000,000 shares, bringing the total of million share Saturday sessions in the history of the stock exchange to 22.

Further rapid advances took place in individual stocks including Air Reduction, Woolworth, Ward Baking B, Dodge Bros. A, and several issues of the specialty type.

However, pivotal stocks like United States Steel, American Can, General Motors and American Smelting were kept in check by profit taking and made no progress on the upside. But the selling in these issues was well absorbed and the general list continued to behave in confident fashion. The market closed higher.

RECORD IN SATURDAY STOCK MARKET

New York, Oct. 3.—All records of trading on the stock exchange since 1906, for the two hour Saturday session were broken today when total sales reached 1,274,400 shares.

This is only the 26th time in the entire history of the stock exchange that Saturday sales have passed the million mark.

The previous high for Saturday trading was established August 15, 1906, when sales totalled 1,603,430.

Early Handkerchiefs

Churchmen have been credited with being the first to use handkerchiefs in Europe, and for a time priests alone were permitted to carry them. Even they were subjected to certain restrictions of use, for the handkerchief formed part of the vestments of the cleric's office and as a "facial" by which name it was known, was worn by the priest officiating before the altar.

The name "John Barleycorn," used as a personification of malt liquor, is derived from an English tract of old date entitled "The Arraigning and Indicting of Sir John Barleycorn Knt." printed for Timothy Tossopot. Sir John Barleycorn appears as a person in a number of similar ballads by John Burns.

To Avoid Foot Trouble

The public health service gives the following information on standing and walking: In using the feet, it is important to (a) toe out a little, if at all, (b) throw the weight rather toward the outer side of the foot, (c) try to learn to use the toes to push as the foot leaves the ground, (d) in standing try to grasp with the toes, (e) in tireless long standing toe-in on the weight-bearing foot.

Law Not Fully Accepted

The law of averages aims to demonstrate that while the trend of human affairs cannot be forecast with certainty, it can be worked out to a considerable extent arithmetically by arriving at averages based on statistics relating to the event. This law is not universally accepted by economists.
